

Today Malden Girl's Body Trapped from Grave

Why Not Mr. Mellon?
Killing Chinese Babies
Lunatics Not Killed
Civil War Here
By Arthur Brisbane

Andrew W. Mellon of Pittsburgh is to be Secretary of the Treasury. Some other men that have proved they know about money were considered—William Boyce Thompson of New York, also Arthur M. Reynolds and Charles G. Dawes, able citizen of Chicago. But Mr. Mellon is to have it. The New York World is excited and wonders why Mr. Harding selects Mellon, who manages about two thousand million dollars tied up in various concerns and has a few hundred million dollars of his own.

Perhaps Mr. Harding's idea is that a man to manage the money of the United States ought to know something about money. If he had to appoint an automobile secretary for the Cabinet, Mr. Harding would do well to get Henry Ford. If possible, and if he had to appoint a newspaper secretary it would be a good idea to get W. A. Rorer. Why not select for United States money secretary a man that has proved he knows how to take care of money, borrow it at low interest, lend it at high interest and keep it always profitably busy?

Mr. Harding must be amused by the amount of kind advice he gets from the World, the New York Times and other papers that did their best (which wasn't much) to prevent his election. Mr. Harding might well say to these earnest advisers: "Go tell it to Mr. Cox. He has time to listen."

They are killing babies in China by the hundreds to save them from the agony of starvation. In Australia and New Zealand, the Argentine and the United States there are great quantities of wheat, meat and other foods stored up with inadequate demand.

The government of the United States is advertising canned foods at great bargains. And in China they throw the babies (girl babies first) into the water or smother them with a handkerchief over the mouth and nose. The poor little yellow babies, what sort of a new order do they make about this earth when they appear before the throne of judgment?

In the United States they are trying to summon up courage to kill hopeless maniacs that can never recover. To the State House Asylum, Hartford, Ct., lunatics were taken to see a poor creature, fifty years old, a man of great size and strength, handcuffed, chained to an iron bed, in a padded cell, far removed from other inmates.

For two years this man has been released from his chains, even for a moment, except once in a month when three strong guards hold him while another washes him. Such men, incurable, should be put out of their misery, the lawmakers think, but the lawmakers hesitate.

The soul is a mysterious thing, they say; how do we know that it isn't improving itself considerably as it thrashes around in a man's brain? Therefore, you can't take the responsibility of sending that soul on its long journey.

We take the responsibility quickly enough, you will notice, when we are quite sure that the soul has returned. We track it, sometimes, hang or shoot it, or electrocute it for murder, or otherwise. But we can't quite make up our minds to set it free when its body is hopelessly diseased.

George Bernard Shaw surprised people by saying that Ireland would fight England with bombs, poison gas, mines and submarines. Poison gas and submarines have not yet been used. But automobiles carrying English soldiers have been destroyed by mines hidden in the road. One attack has been made from the air by a flying machine. Since the invention of powder and bullets it has become more and more difficult to control human beings or to use force successfully.

It is not necessary to go to Ireland, unfortunately, in order to find unpleasant fighting. There is a very good imitation of civil war in West Virginia. Mr. Lane reports for Mr. Lamont's New York Evening Post some very interesting conditions. All kinds of weapons are used on both sides. The owners of the mines are on the one side. They own the houses, the stores, the churches, they build the churches, they own the schoolhouses, they guarantee the church against loss. They are the church against loss. They are the church against loss. They are the church against loss.

They own the police, have a convict mortgage on public officials. It looks like a very complicated arrangement. Coal mine owners mine coal—that's where the workmen come in. They are put out of their homes; some of them get shot fighting the mine owners. Their most difficult adversary is the judge on the bench with his industrial training by the mine owners' lawyer.

When a United States judge is asked to issue a writ of habeas corpus, he is asked to "prohibit" union officials from making the statement that the strike is legal. You can't help admiring the way in which that judge saves the money for whoever it is that pays him.

The developments are all interesting, but the time is coming when the owners of mines and some other things will wonder how they could ever be such fools as to play with fire.

R. R. STATION IN MOB NON-UNION DUBLIN RAILED BY SHAW FEIN

Masked and Armed, 100 Men Hold Up Staff, Cutting Off Light and Power

By International News Service. Dublin, Feb. 8.—One hundred men, masked and armed with revolvers, entered the Great Northern Railway station early today, held up the staff, cut off the light and power house and cut the telephone and telegraph wires. The raiders remained for 45 minutes, but did not carry any property away with them.

A troop train was derailed near Kinsale, in County Kerry, but there were no casualties. Soldiers had been placed upon the tracks. Reports from Dublin Castle show that the Republicans are active on a wide scale in many parts of Ireland. In some communities the entire telephone systems have been cut down. Trenches have been dug along roadways and bridges blown up to obstruct the movement of troops and police.

Michael Collins, commander-in-chief of the Irish Republican army, was not killed in the battle between Sinn Féin and British military police in Dublin, some Republicans say, but on the contrary "is very much alive." It was definitely established today.

Two boys and fourteen and seven were shot while playing in a field near Kinsale.

A police detachment was ambushed near Kinsale in County Antrim, but the attackers were repulsed after a brief exchange of fire.

The Londonderry barracks in County Antrim were shelled and burned by Sinn Féin. The police escaped, but the barracks were filled with water, ignored the flames that flared above their heads and hauled the barrel through the burning doors.

Holy Cross Cemetery, Malden, Scene of Second Case of Grave Robbery

An act of godlessness that has aroused the police and citizens of Malden was discovered today when it was found that the grave of a sixteen-year-old Katherine V. Brown, a victim of sleeping sickness, had been opened in Holy Cross Cemetery, and the body pulled partly from the coffin.

The discovery was made by Paul Corrigan, grave digger at the cemetery, and the police, who were notified, at once started a search for the perpetrators of the crime.

It was recalled that last August a similar act was committed in the same cemetery, when the body of a woman was dug up, headed and the head carried away.

REARDED BURIAL. Mrs. Brown, who lived at No. 2, Hawthorn street, Everett, was buried yesterday, and according to J. J. Corrigan, the undertaker, who made the funeral arrangements, there were no visitors on the body. The young woman was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Brown, and was extremely attractive.

She was buried in a lot on the first avenue of St. Bridget's cemetery, in the lower end of the cemetery, in a comparatively unobtrusive position. Corrigan, in preparation for his act.

Two others, were severely handled by a crowd which surged through the lot. The police were unable to prevent the burial.

General Smuts, leader of the Imperialists (Afri-Secessionists) in a final appeal to the voters, urged that, if the Nationalists Secessionists gained control of the National Legislature, it would result in racial distrust and perhaps civil war. Latest advices from Cape Town said that the Imperialists chances had been improving during the past 24 hours.

worth $100,000. This man, according to McDonald, later proved to be Frank C. Oxman, another important boss against Mooney and his co-defendants.

After the trial, McDonald said he went to Los Angeles. He had been promised a reward of $17,500, but he learned that all he got was a five dollar bill once in a while and expense money.

Walsh was taken under oath by Attorney Walsh and has been telegraphed to San Francisco. Mr. Walsh said it would be placed before the special grand jury now investigating allegations of conspiracy in connection McDonald has been living for some time at Trenton, N. J. He said that about a month ago he read some of the testimony given to the special grand jury at San Francisco by James Hanks, one of the witnesses.

It set him to worrying about the case he had played in the case. He found that Mr. Walsh had of- fice in this city and came to work on Monday. He spent four hours going over his entire part in Donald began his story to the jury by swearing that he could not identify Mooney as the man he had seen with a suitcase just before the bomb explosion.

Moore had compelled him to testify to his identification of Mooney. McDonald asserted he had received a letter from an official promising him a reward if he identified Billings, another of the defendants, who was sentenced to life imprisonment.

According to the statement McDonald made to Walsh, he was standing
Stewart street, near Market, in San Francisco, about 1 p. m. on July 1916, when he saw a man pursue a suitcase and walk away. Jus-

McDonald said he paid no more attention to the suitcase, but walked down Market street and boarded a trolley. Then he heard an explosion.

He thought it was part of the celebration. Later, when he heard of the bomb outrage, he told the proprietor of the Goldfield Hotel and a policeman named Arthur Hextron what he had seen.

The following day, upon Hexton's advice, he went to San Francisco police headquarters, where he met Lieutenant Goss, Captain Mathison and District Attorney Fickert.

Apparently Mooney was already under suspicion for Mr. Flicker asked McDonald if he knew the laborer and upon receiving a negative answer proceeded to describe him. The information given by McDonald at that meeting seemed to clinch

The following day Lieutenant Goss took McDonald to see Mooney, who had been arrested in the meantime. "Here is your man," Goss remarked at the cell door, according to McDonald.

McDonald said he met Mr. Ficker every day following that and eventually he was put in the courtroom.

McDonald told of changing some of his testimony between the 1933 and 1934 trials.

which the consumers would be expected to pay dividends of $2,400,000

Mr. Burdett is the law partner of

Dear Sir:—This letter is written to tell you that we certainly appreciate the way your Merchandising Service Department worked with our New York people in making a success of our Lowney's Crest Chocolates Advertising Campaign in New York City territory.

The dealer message and reproduction of our newspaper advertisement in your Trade News, which you mailed to the druggists and confectioners in that territory, the many window displays which you secured for us, together with the numerous other helps given by your people, were big factors in putting this campaign over 100%.

Very truly yours,

Mr. James Dayton, Publisher,

New York City.

Dear Mr. Dayton,

RE: COOPERATION.

The work done by your Merchandising Service Department during our recent campaign in New York has proved to me the valuable tie-up you are able to secure with dealers. As you know, we gave Mr. Lynch and Mr. Hobson very little time in which to prepare for this cooperation, but the results did not seem to suffer.

I visited several sections of the city in checking up the work, and in every case found that the dealers had been called upon, and were either displaying Gillette Razors in their windows and in their show cases, or had placed displays on their show windows, to tie up with Gillette advertising.

I am very glad to acknowledge the splendid work accomplished by your Merchandising Department, and thank you for the assistance which was rendered during this campaign.

Yours very truly,

GILLETTE SAFETY RAZOR COMPANY.

CHARLIE CHAPLIN IN MOTION PICTURES

File When Policeman Enters
Building to Solve Mystery of
Tracks in Snow

Charlie Chaplin came back to Hollywood with some new tricks up his sleeve. He says he'll teach Will Rogers how to rope before he gets through.

By FRIEDA DAVIS.
It's not often that a picture can preach to us and still be entertaining. Cosmopolitan's film version of Winston Churchill's novel, "The Inside of the Cup," is just such a picture. The theme is taken from the Bible itself. It deals with greed and graft and drives with directness to the very heart of the subject.

John Hodder is the pastor of St. John's church, overlooking Dalton street, the town of the film. Only the rich are allowed into the church and the poor are turned out.

Gideon Perry, the richest man in the parish, is an unscrupulous vestryman and the mainstay of the church. His daughter, Alison, leaves home in disgust and takes up settlement work. His son, Preston, leaves home to drag the family name through the gutter after his father has refused to let him marry Kate, a shopgirl, and has forced the girl to leave with a quick gang.

Hodder becomes interested in Alison's settlement work and learns the truth of the vestryman. He accuses them from the pulpit and has the poor pack the seats of the church. "Pier" is killed by Garton, who then kills himself. Preston Perry marries the shopgirl, and Hodder's money is lost.

The film is full of intense and dramatic moments. A powerful thought is being presented in each scene. The picture is a masterpiece of the hypocrisy of the church, the audience is intensely quiet. And this is only one of the many powerful phases of the picture. It is gripping from start to finish.

William P. Carter, who is feeling the role of Hodder, has been from the weak, easily led tool of the hypocrites in the role of "The Inside of the Cup" and fine touches. Both Hall and speaking, though somewhat pale as the heroine, Alison Perry, while Marguerite Clayton does clever work as the shopgirl, Kate.

The continuity of the piece is excellent, giving almost continuous action and "munchy" each reel. It was well staged and well directed by Frank Capra.

CHARLIE CHAPLIN looking more vibrant and happy than in many years, visited Will Rogers at the Golden Gate Hotel last week.

Rogers, accused of planning to give up films for the stage, "The stage," Chaplin laughed. "I saw enough poor plays on Broadway last autumn to convince me that they don't want anything from me. I'm sticking to pictures."

MARY PICKFORD has lost her automobile license for a year because he has been arrested three times for speeding. This means in pictures as well as on the screen.

MARY PICKFORD and Douglas Fairbanks have a projection machine and a screen in their home where they put on movies nearly every night. A picture on the wall is rolled up and a screen rolled down and the theatre is ready.

THE OLD SWIMMER's next picture, "The Old Swimmer," has no subtitles.

ROBERT FLAHERTY is planning to go on the stage once more.

DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS has been badly hurt by a fall he had while he was filming his next, "The Sign." But he will be out of the production game for five weeks. He and Mary Pickford have given up their plans for a European tour.

BURGARS TRY TO STOP SALES

File When Policeman Enters
Building to Solve Mystery of
Tracks in Snow

Footprints in the frozen sidewalk now, which aroused the curiosity of Patrolman William Ruth of the Lynn police, frustrated an attempt early today to blow two safes in a warehouse on State street, Lynn, occupied by the Lynn Building Supply Company and the Broadway-Smith Company.

The regiments, disturbed when he passed, made an exit for a rear door and cutting across the Boston & Maine railroad tracks, which parallel State street, entered in the darkness.

An instant search was made throughout the city by the police for the two burglars and nearly two hours were passed, but up to a late hour this morning the men had not been apprehended.

When Ruth entered he found that the combination of the safe in the Broadway-Smith Company's office had been knocked off, and that a fuse leading to dynamite had been blown out or had been quickly extinguished with a few inches of the explosive.

The combination had also been knocked from the safe in the Lynn Building Supply Company, but the burglars had evidently been frightened by Ruth's entrance before they had time to set the fuse.

FISH MARKET RACE

Gloucester Refuses to Compete in Tryouts Unless Boston Boat Is Barred

Gloucester, Feb. 8.—If the schooner Mayflower, fostered by a group of Boston business men, is entered as a contestant in the International Fishermen's races next Fall, Gloucester will not be represented in the contest, for ship owners here feel she is not to be classed as a fishing vessel, and is out of all proportions in length and tonnage.

If, however, the Mayflower is not completed in time to enter the racing season in April, owners of ocean racing will see an inspiring sight when a fleet of fishing schooners from all ports on this side of the Atlantic will enter an elimination contest to see which shall be sent to Halifax to compete against the "Arc" now building at Lunenburg.

There will undoubtedly be some protest against the Canadian boat as Gloucester men declare her to be out of all proportions as a fisherman. If she is permitted to race, Gloucester will send a boat against her, even though she has to send another four-year-old schooner to win the cup.

The ship builders here concede that all records of ship building must be smashed if the Mayflower is to be completed by the opening of the season.

While there are no clauses in the deed of gift drawn by the two committees to restrict the lines of entrant, there is some dissatisfaction among local owners, who feel that the Canadians in entering a vessel of the design of the "Arc" are getting away from the genuine fishing vessel and entering into the racing game.

Percorator Smith predicts fair weather tonight and unseasoned weather tomorrow, probably to be followed by rain or snow. Temperatures will rise slowly and there will be fresh northwesterly winds. One inch of snow fell in Boston last night. In other parts of Southern New England the fall was greater, as the snow flurries lasted throughout the forenoon. Harmony Portrays Firemen in Action at Mechanics Hall Ball

PETER S. WALSH, CHARLES A. DONOHUE, and other couples at the Mechanics Hall Ball.

More than 5,000 couples attended the first-annual annual ball of the Boston Fire and Protective Department's Relief Association at Mechanics Hall. Mayor Petre and Fire Commissioner John R. Murphy occupied seats with their wives on the platform, as did other guests from nearby cities and towns.

So large was the attendance that Exhibition Hall was opened for checking purposes. Here also gathered many of the "Vets" and members of the Box 12 Association and told of the big fire of bygone days. All the "fire sparks" a name given to those who respond to all first alarm bells, joined in the discussion.

A feature of interest to the women was the fire alarm box set in the center of Exhibition Hall, in charge of Fireman Dunn of the Bristol street shop. Each woman was shown how to pull in an alarm. "It was great work for the women, and many who appeared to be timid or showed lack of strength in opening the door of the box left the place fortified with a knowledge of how to act in case of fire."

The feature of the ball was the grand march, led by Lieutenant Louis Bickins and Miss Dorothy McDermott, followed by Mayor Petre and Mrs. Murphy, Fire Commissioner Murphy and Mrs. Helen LeCocq, Miss Eleanor Murphy and John R. Murphy, and Chief of Department Peter A. Walsh and daughter, Miss Marie Walsh.

175,000 ARMY BILL MADE LAW BY SENATE VOTE

Washington, Feb. 8.—The Senate approved the action of the House in overriding the President's veto of the army reduction bill. The vote was 67-1. Senator Kirby, Democrat of Arkansas, cast the only negative vote.

The bill, which reduces the army to 175,000, now becomes a law.

Charles J. Budlong, well known education worker of Manchester, N. H., after being in ill health and "run-down" for years, says that today, at 54 years of age, he is as strong and vigorous as he was at 25, following his use of Glaxo Compound, the new animal gland tonic.

Mr. Budlong's successful experience is of even more interest to the public than the famous money gland experiments which started the world a few months ago, for this is a treatment which is within the reach of everyone, as it does not necessitate an operation.

When interviewed, Mr. Budlong said: "For many years I had been troubled with nervous and general debility. At times nervous prostration was so severe that I was forced to spend much time in bed. I tried many remedies with varying success, but no lasting cure was obtained until after I had used Glaxo Compound. It was to me most beneficial from the first treatment, and improvement was rapid."

"Today, although 54 years of age, I am fully as strong and vigorous as the 25 year old period. I believe Glaxo Compound is the greatest known remedy for loss of strength. It certainly has done wonderful things for me and I unhesitatingly recommend it to the public in general. It is my sincere hope and belief that my happy experience with this wonderful and rejuvenating preparation will be that of everyone that uses it."

Big Trunk Lines Nearly Agreed in Case Before Interstate Commerce Commission

Washington, Feb. 8.—The New England railroads are due for major financial relief as a result of an agreement reached among the principal trunk lines to give the New England roads $15,600,000 in settlement of the case now pending before the Interstate Commerce Commission, in which the New England carriers sued for a larger proportion of the division of revenues, officials of the commission were informed today.

George McKay, well remembered here for his part of "The Little Girl Who Lives Next Door," is the new musical comedy which he has opened a limited engagement at the Shubert Theatre.
